LA ACCIÓN DIRECTIVA Y EL LIDERAZGO
JESÚS E. ALBERTOS SAN JOSÉ
Universidad Internacional de La Rioja

The directive action is proper to the human level, and consists internally of aspects such as intellection, the decision, power, or will. Each of these aspects involves a separate analysis, but it should be understood in a unified way. Likewise, from an outside perspective of directive action may affect other people in the form of leadership, and in this sense can also analyze which are the conditions of possibility and limitations for this action can be considered as such. In addition, they are more irrational aspects in the follow of the leader, who may even be contradicted with initially indicated. Finally a reflection is also made about the maturity and its relevance in the process.